Lessons Learned from Enforcement Actions and Lawsuits So Far

With a seismic shift in enforcement focus from the Biden to Trump administrations, to what extent are lessons learned from previous enforcement actions still relevant? Is the playbook being rewritten? Panelists will tackle these topics as well as what recent court cases may reveal about the legal landscape for financial institutions.

Crypto Connected: How the Administration is Making Crypto Part of Mainstream Finance

In a clear pivot from Biden-era crypto skepticism, the Trump administration has initiated policies that will strengthen cryptocurrencies' ties to traditional finance. What will these policy shifts mean for all parties in the financial ecosystem, including regulators at the state and federal levels? Our expert panelists will provide insights.

ACAMS TALK - The Impact of Victim - Blaming in Fraud Crimes and Our Role in Changing the Narrative

Kathy Stokes’ mission with the AARP Fraud Watch Network is to educate older adults about the significant risk fraud represents to their financial security. But Kathy and her team recognize that education alone is not the solution. They are working to reframe fraud victimization and call for a whole-of-society response to the fraud crisis. Come hear Kathy discuss AARP’s “words matter” campaign and the new National Elder Fraud Coordination Center that launched in April 2025.

Data: The Tie That Binds

In 2025, it’s crucial to recognize that data strategy is foundational for every challenge that financial institutions face: Implementing and integrating AI and other new technologies; withstanding regulatory scrutiny; deploying resources effectively; protecting both the enterprise and its customers from threats to their security – including financial security. Our engaging data gurus will show you how adopting a “data first” mindset paves the way for long-term success and long-lasting results.

Game Changer: Technology in Gambling Compliance

In the movies, suspicious activity in a casino is monitored by security personnel in a surveillance room watching live video feeds from the casino floor. But the movies haven’t caught up to reality. Today, AI-driven AML solutions can identify suspicious betting behavior, transaction anomalies and customer risk patterns in real time.

- This session will help you:
- Understand how AI and other innovative technologies can enhance your BSA/AML program
 - Identify and mitigate fraud and security risks posed by innovative technologies
 - Understand the importance of automation, validation and regular updates for transaction monitoring and reporting systems

Fending Off Fentanyl: China, Mexican Drug Cartels and the U.S.

Chinese underground banking organizations enable Mexican cartels, such as the Sinaloa and Jalisco New Generation Cartels, to launder drug proceeds and procure precursor fentanyl chemicals from China. In this deep dive session, discover how U.S. law enforcement agencies are overcoming complex international schemes and bringing indictments against the merchants of death.

ACAMS TALK - Tales of a Compliance Survivor: From Tradfi to Fintechs, 4 Rules to Live By

Dana Lawrence started her financial career in mortgage lending before the 2008 financial crisis. She moved on to serve in compliance roles at traditional banks and fintechs; currently, she is senior director of Fintech Compliance at Pacific West Bank. In this ACAMS Talk, Dana will share the compliance lessons she's learned from a varied 20-year career in financial services. Dana's four rules to live by are good advice for any compliance officer.

Bad Guys Know No Silos: How Fraudsters Exploit a Diversified Financial Ecosystem

In Britain, the warning sign "mind the gap" refers to the space between a train door and the platform. But it also could be applied to disconnected points of entry in the modern financial system. This session is based on the real story of a retiree who was bilked out of $740,000 in savings by moving money to and from investment firms, a large bank, Bitcoin and a gold dealer. Our panelists will identify the barriers to identifying and stopping schemes like this and ways these hurdles might be overcome.

AI Success Stories from Financial Institutions of All Sizes

AI use has moved from the headlines to the front lines in every industry, including financial services. In this session, hear real examples of AI success stories from your peers throughout the banking world, from Tier 1 banks to regional and community institutions.

Designating drug cartels as foreign terrorist organizations has far-reaching effects for every aspect of AML and CFT compliance, including sanctions programs.

This session will help you:

- Understand what the FTO designations entail from a sanctions perspective
- Assess your risk exposure to cartels' extensive footprints
- Strengthen your sanctions compliance program in response to the FTO risk

Regulatory Update: Crypto/Fintech Focus

A general regulatory update session is hardly enough to cover all the news involving fintech and crypto so far this year. This roundtable will focus exclusively on developments affecting the digital economy.

Healthcare Hustle: A Medicare/Medicaid Fraud Case Study

Featuring undercover informant recordings, social media clips revealing the suspects' lifestyles and video of a $2 million cash seizure, this gripping session looks into the tools, tactics, and impact of two major healthcare fraud operations.

This session will help you:

- Identify red flags for healthcare fraud, including the use of shell corporations, layered transactions and suspicious Medicare/Medicaid billing
- Discover how transaction monitoring, beneficial ownership analysis and suspicious activity reporting were used to trace more than $340 million through an intricate web of accounts
- Learn how to provide timely, actionable intelligence to dismantle large-scale healthcare fraud and money-laundering networks

The Big Picture: A Holistic View of Public-Private Cooperation

ACAMS Assembly sessions on public-private partnerships usually focus on a specific effort. In this panel, participants from the regulatory, law enforcement and private sectors will zoom out and discuss how to promote a collective response to financial crime. Reaching out across teams within an organization is hard enough; is it really possible to foster crime-fighting collaboration externally? Our panelists say “yes,” and they’ll tell you how.
