Compliance and 'Commodities of Concern': Identifying Export Control Evasion

Though it's often conflated with sanctions enforcement, fighting export control evasion is a topic worthy of consideration on its own.

- · Apply Customer Due Diligence measures instead of transaction monitoring to combat export control evasion
- · Find red flags for suspicious activity, including comparing transaction volumes before and after sanctions
- · Cooperate across borders with branches of your own financial institutions to help identify export control evasion

Moderator:

Lynn Li, CAMS-Audit, AML Director - Greater China, ACAMS

Presenters:

Ajay Budhrani, CAMS, Head of Compliance Advisory, for Consumer, Private and Business Banking, Asia, Standard Chartered Bank

Mike Kung, Executive Director and Senior Counsel, Goldman Sachs

What to do About Data? Special Privacy Considerations in Hong Kong

Conflicting international laws concerning data privacy put global financial institutions in a difficult position. Hong Kong's own data protection law can also pose a challenge to information sharing. Our experts will share ways to resolve these issues.

- Evaluate how the Hong Kong data protection law, which limits ability to export data about individuals, affects your financial institution
- · Overcome the data privacy challenges of cross-border AML investigations
- · Resolve the apparent conflict between the use of KYC technology and data privacy requirements

Moderator:

Esther Tsang, Executive Director, Goldman Sachs

Presenters:

Carolyn Bigg, Partner, DLA Piper Hong Kong

Michele Fung, General Manager, Lianlian International Co. Ltd

3:25PM-3:55PM
