| 3:00 PM – 4:00 PM PANEL DISCUSSION | Great Expectations: A Look at the Cullen Commission’s Report and Recommendations The complete report from the Cullen Commission is expected in the next few weeks and should include a plethora of findings and accompanying recommendations meant to address British Columbia’s AML deficiencies and prevent further money laundering in the province. The question on everyone’s mind is: what happens next? Will the Cullen Recommendations become legislation for BC? And if so, the legislation be enforced? Will the rest of Canada follow BC’s lead? How will the report and related legislation impact beneficial ownership registries? Will this completely change the way DNFBPs such as lawyers and accountants do business? In this session, our experts will detail how AML professionals can prepare for the Cullen Recommendations, and the potential impact on the Canadian economy. Moderator: Jacqueline Shinfield, Partner, Blake, Cassels & Graydon Presenters: James Cohen, Executive Director, Transparency International Canada Maureen Maloney, QC, Professor of Public Policy / Senior Associate, Simon Fraser University / International Centre for Criminal Law Reform (ICCLR) Brock Martland, QC, Senior Commission Counsel, Cullen Commission of Inquiry into Money Laundering in BC |

| 3:00 PM – 4:00 PM COMPLIANCE SUMMIT | Juggling Act: Balancing Data Privacy Laws Within Public/Private Partnerships Knowledge is power. The more information and that support compliance professionals have, the more effective they will be at their jobs. The Canadian government has increased its focus on public/private partnerships (PPPs). One example of this is reflected in Public Safety Canada's Departmental Plan for 2022-2023, in which they will team up with private and public sector partners to fight criminal activities such as the flow of illegal firearms, human trafficking and cybercrime. However, these collaborations can be challenging for the public sector because they must ensure and enforce that data sharing and investigations are compliant with privacy protection laws. In this panel, our experts will dive into the current challenges government personnel faces with public-private partnerships, information sharing and data privacy. Presenters: Kevin deBruyckere, CAMS, Director AML & Investigations, British Columbia Lottery Corporation (BCLC) Nolan Fuller, Attaché, IRS Criminal Investigation, United States Embassy – Ottawa | |
